The fourth and final episode of the second edition of If I Can't Dance... focusing on Feminist Legacies and Potentials in Contemporary Art Practice will open with a large-scale exhibition at the MuHKA [Museum of Contemporary Art Antwerp] this October combining elements from the collection with a series of works by invited artists. The exhibition assembles works by artists of various generations: artists who were expressive about feminist issues during the 60s and 70s, such as Sanja Ivekovic, Lili Dujourie and Jef Geys; artists who built up a critical body of work during the 80s, such as Jutta Koether; the generation born around 1968 including among others Hito Steyerl, Cathy Wilkes and Karl Holmqvist; and the youngest generation including among others Katarina Zdjelar and Falke Pisano. To accompany the exhibition If I Can't Dance... has devised a project, which unfolds over three cities and comprises a film programme at MuHKA_media [Antwerp], a symposium at De Balie [Amsterdam] and a performance programme at the Huis a/d Werf [Utrecht]. As a rolling collaborative and critical platform If I Can't Dance... is delighted to work again with many of the art and theatre institutions which have partnered us in this two year exploration in the creation of a transnational and large scale programme this autumn and winter. ____
